these have been sold in Vermont during two years than has been sold of any one other make.

The following letter shows how every one who investigates them comes to feel.

SO. WATERBURY, ME.
D. A. LUTY.
MY DEAR MR. LUTY—I had entirely given up all thought of buying or buying a new engine, as our engine has never run better than since you were here. But since I saw the engine you sent Mr. Smith work it has just made me want a Reliance and I think I would ask you if you still have good and if so how soon you can deliver one. Have you seen talking with several and think I can put you into a new one. Hoping to hear from you by return mail.

Yours truly, FRANK H. BORDS, M. D.

California cotton mills in East Oakland, and the return of more than $2,500,000 from this first carload gave tremendous impetus to those engaged in the new industry. Thirty more carloads will follow it during the season.

Practically the entire area of the valley is suitable for the production of this cotton and the region has various advantages over the south, which may mean the difference to the producer between success and failure. The dressed boll weevil is unknown in Imperial, and it is stated on good authority that there is no danger of invasion from the pest as it cannot live in the climate.
Doubt need not be feared, as the water supply can be regulated; there are no destructive rainstorms to injure the crop and no frost to hinder the picking.

March Technical World Magazine.

System's Greed Debauched Young Men of Denver.

The case before us continued. These continued also a general exodus from Denver that became one of the jokes of the newspapers. "Bill Evans," president of the company, had one East Frederick, the manager of the gas company, had taken an early train. Bill Davoren, chairman of the Democratic city and county central committee, had flown and a friend of his came to my chambers to ask that I grant him immunity on the promise that the organization would back him as a candidate for the government. Scores of young clerks made off, their traveling expenses paid (as some of them have since confessed to me) by the gas company. The mothers of these boys —or their wives—came to my chambers with pitiful tales of poverty and lack of employment, and told me that their sons or their husbands had been compelled to leave their families or lost the work on which they depended for their daily bread. (The victims of the beast!) One of the guilty clerks was the son of a Denver business man, and I was brought for the sake of his father, for the sake of the congregation, for the sake of religion and public decency, not to put him on the witness stand. (He finally engaged the process server and got out of town.) A young man came to confess to me that he had committed perjury in Judge Johnson's court, believing that the corporations would "square it." "For," he said, "it's been common talk that the corporations control the supreme court, and wouldn't let me get into trouble." All day in my chambers every evening in my home, these trembling tales of corporation government besieged me with their petitions for clemency; and the pitiful moral degradation of it all made life a nightmare. These people were not the "lower classes" of the slum whom you are accustomed to think of as born to crime and suffering. These were not the workmen who are "cattle" to such as Freeman, and in his opinion "not fit to govern themselves." They were those whom you, "gentle reader," are accustomed to consider as good as yourself.
And yet they were dragged through the mire of fraud and perjury, just as you and your children and your wives and your mothers will be dragged, if the light will fall over his shoulder on the hook or paper, and not shine directly into his face. He may be reading, as anything which interests and entertains him is a help.

Caring for Convalescents

"Chattering and gossiping visitors have no place in the sick-room," asserts Miss H. Kinney, R. N., superintendent of the U. S. A. nurse corps, in the Woman's Home Companion for March, and to save the patient from such friends is an important duty of his nurse. A few agreeable, low-voiced and judicious persons make a pleasant break in the monotony of an invalid's life, and are great aids to cheerfulness, but care must be used regarding the number admitted—never more than two at a time—and a fatiguing succession must be avoided.

The Father of William J. Sides—The

Mathematical Prodigy—Tells How ## to Raise Boys.

In an article by H. Addington Bruce, in the March American Magazine, the author writes of William James Sides, the eleven-year-old boy phenomenon, who recently lectured before Harvard professors on the "Four-Dimensional Bodies." Mr. Bruce, who has known the boy since he was four, claims that he is quite normal in every respect, and that his gift for mathematics was more a result of educational training by his father. Mr. Bruce quotes as follows the elder Sides:

"The notion that the young child's mind should be allowed to follow," he says, "is a very old one, but it is utterly wrong and pernicious. The child is essentially a thinking animal. No power on earth can keep him from thinking, from using his mind. From the moment his inquiring eyes first take in the details of his surroundings he begins the mental process which education is intended to guide and develop.
He observes, he suffers, he infers, from everything he sees and hears, he seeks to give expression to his thoughts."

"Left to himself, however, he is certain to observe inaccurately and to make many erroneous inferences. Unless he is taught how to think he is sure to think incorrectly, and to acquire wrong habits of thought, owing him to form bad judgments respecting matters not only vital to his own welfare but also important to the welfare of society. In fact, in order to get the best results, his training should begin as soon as, or even before, he starts to talk.
The child is not a feeble, over-taxed little mind. On the contrary the effort will be to develop and strengthen it, by accustoming him to make habitual use of the latent energy, which most people never utilize at all."

Where Old-Age Pensions Pay.

The Santa Fe does not pay pensions higher than seventy-five dollars a month, and does it pay more than twenty dollars a month? The railroad company believes, says Walter Weyl in "Success Magazine," that it is precisely the more poorly paid employees who should be assured of a reasonable pension, since the men with higher salaries may be presumed to have saved at least something. A man who earned fifty dollars a month and had worked twenty years would receive only ten dollars per month on the Pennsylvania, but would obtain twenty dollars on the Santa Fe.
The western road discriminates in favor of those who find it hard to lay aside for a rainy day, and in especially meritorious cases the board of pensions is allowed to add twenty-five per cent to the pension, to which the man is entitled by length of service.

If you glance at these railroad pension systems superficially, you may think that they do not pay. It seems as though the railroad company is giving out less than it ought to pay. But look a little closer, you will see that the railroad is getting more than an equivalent. The whole service has improved. The old engineer has an interest in the company; it is "his" company. He puts a little zeal into the work; a little extra intelligence, a little more conscientiousness. If he avoids a wreck which might otherwise have occurred, he saves the company more than the whole cost of the month's pensions. The morale of the force improves. That it pays the railroads is shown by the fact that one railroad after another is adopting the plan. The plan of pensioning old employees is spreading through the entire gigantic transportation system of the United States.

About the State

Strawberries have appeared in the Burlington markets at the tempting price of 50 cents per basket.

T. J. Labor of the Bardwell House, Rutland, caught one of the largest pickered March 5 ever pulled out of Lake Buntings. It was nearly three feet long and weighed 18 pounds.

The 11-year-old daughter of Frank Lawrence of Burlington was taken ill in a drug store there Thursday and the physician in attendance stated that she showed signs of having been intoxicated.

Miss Cora Leonard of Timbough lost a handbag Thursday, while shopping in Burlington, containing $183, which she intended to deposit in the bank. She thought she left it in one of the stores, but a search for it proved unsuccessful.

Bradford is to have a new canning factory built this spring, which will be owned about the middle of August.
For about six weeks 125 hands will be employed and the rest of the time 25 hands. Two hundred and fifty acres of corn have been contracted for.

The new vessel mill in Bradford is starting out well, having a capacity of 25 hands and employing 28.
The mill is capable of turning out 10, 000 and 10,000 feet of veneer a day, requiring 2,000 feet of lumber. The superintendent, Mr. Dove of Buffalo, has had ten years' experience and the success of the new industry is assured.

The register at Hale's Tavern, Wells River, shows that last week 350 automobile parties put up there, which means that 1,175 persons from 23 states of the union were cared for. It is evident that the automobile travel has something to do with the prosperity of hotel keepers as well as with the rest of business life in towns through which a trunk line passes.

A meeting of about forty citizens of Brandon was held Thursday evening at the Brandon Inn to consider the question of forming a stock company for purchasing the Brandon Inn property and possibly the floodgates property adjoining, and repairing and renovating the same and putting the property in first-class condition. Something over $6,000 was subscribed and a committee was appointed to solicit further subscriptions.

Mrs. Penelope Miles observed her 80th birthday anniversary March 9, at her home on Dunsmuir Hill. She retains all her faculties and is in excellent health, doing much reading and helping the sewing of the family of her daughter, with whom she lives, often asking for more work to do. Mrs.
Miles is a veteran bed-quilt maker and each of her grandchildren and great-grandchildren has a quilt of her making.
She lived the last one when 83 years old, for her great-granddaughter, Ruth, Emily Stockwell of Williamstown, Mass.
Mrs. Miles attended the funeral of her grandson, Lupo P. Miles, who died in Chicopee Falls, Mass., Jan. 19, of this year.

Edward Bailey and Joseph Johnson have installed the first accessories of a wireless station, which they hope to have in Springfield soon. A detector has been purchased and, by means of an aerial, which Joseph Johnson has constructed on the top of the bank block, they are able to hear telephones ring in various parts of the town. The affair is hardly more than an experiment as yet, but the instruments work well, a complete transmission station will be installed. Wire instruments are to arrive later. If the station should be a success, the operators have ambitions of constructing an aerial from the steeple of the Congregational church to the roof of the bank block, which would add much to the distance that could be spanned by the wireless.

G. P. Matava walked into an air hole in the lee near the Connecticut river bridge in Brattleboro, March 4, and had a narrow escape from drowning. He was working with the crew who were blasting out the bridge and was returning to the shore, but he was pulled out by a diver, who had been dropped from the bridge in his arms. He had walked across the same place several times, but the blasting probably weakened the lee over the air hole. Mr. Matava went down some distance, but he did not touch bottom and luckily he came up close to the sound line. He was pulled out without difficulty, but he dropped the diver of dynamite. The explosion is on the bottom of the river in 35 feet of water and there is little probability that it will be hit by anything to cause an explosion.

Tracy A. Gray, an employee of the Boston & Maine railway, had a narrow escape from drowning last week Monday.
He came in from his work at 3 o'clock in the morning and decided to take a whiff at his cigar before retiring. He fell asleep without putting out the cigar and two hours later, his sister, who lives next door, noticed smoke coming from the room and a blaze within. Charles Gray, brother of the sleeping man, was unable to find him in the room on account of the dense smoke, but the victim was able to escape from the room by crawling on his hands and knees. The firemen threw the mattress from the bed to the yard below and the fact that the bed itself was of iron was probably all that saved the life of Mr. Gray. The house was not damaged.
